PRESS RELEASE

Keensight Capital partners with Bassetti Group, a leading industrial software developer, to accelerate the company's international growth

Paris, November 20, 2026 – Keensight Capital ("Keensight"), one of the leading private equity managers dedicated to pan-European Growth Buyout[1] investments, today announces it has signed an agreement to invest in Bassetti Group ("Bassetti"), a leading provider of industrial software solutions for technical data management, with a presence across Europe and internationally, alongside pan-European growth equity investor Revaia, the founder and CEO David Bassetti, as well as the management team.

Founded in 1992, Bassetti Group develops software solutions designed for industrial companies. Its flagship platform, named TEEXMA, offers nine modular solutions covering key industrial functions, from research and development to manufacturing (including laboratory information management, environment, health and safety (EHS), maintenance, quality, materials and knowledge management). By centralizing data and facilitating knowledge sharing and traceability, the platform helps companies improve operational efficiency, secure regulatory compliance and accelerate innovation.

Building on more than 30 years in technical expertise management, its long-standing relationships with blue-chip customers and its international presence, Bassetti is entering a new phase of development. With the support of Keensight Capital and Revaia, the company will focus on reinforcing its leadership and accelerating its expansion globally, including in the DACH region and North America, while increasing adoption of its platform among existing customers and winning new customers across a wider range of industries.

To support its growth ambitions, Bassetti will pursue selective acquisitions to further enhance the platform, strengthen its technical and sector expertise, and expand its international footprint. At the same time, the company will accelerate innovation by building on TEEXMA's existing AI capabilities, including the generative AI features. It will also expand its SaaS offering and invest further in data analytics to meet the evolving needs of industrial customers.

David Bassetti, who remains the majority shareholder, will continue to lead the company alongside the existing management team, ensuring continuity for customers, employees and partners.

David Bassetti, Founder and CEO of Bassetti Group, commented: "From the outset, our ambition has been to help industrial companies structure and make better use of their technical and scientific data and expertise. With TEEXMA, we have developed a modular platform that supports their digital transformation and operational performance. Keensight's international experience, buy-and-build expertise and operational support will help us accelerate our development while preserving the industrial expertise, entrepreneurial culture and close customer relationships that define Bassetti."

Charles Bonnassieux, Partner at Keensight Capital, said: "Bassetti has built a unique position in industrial software, combining deep domain expertise with a single platform covering nine solutions and long-standing relationships with many of Europe's largest industrial groups. As AI makes well-structured technical data more valuable than ever, we see strong potential to accelerate Bassetti's international development and to support selective acquisitions that enrich their platform."

Jeremie Falzone, Partner at Revaia, said: "Bassetti has become the system of record for the technical data of Europe's most demanding industrial groups, built on an exceptional depth of domain expertise. We are delighted to partner with Keensight to help David and his teams turn that position into a scaled software business, starting with the DACH region, where we see the largest opportunity and where Revaia has teams on the ground."

The acquisition, which also marks the exit of Siparex, a shareholder since 2022, is expected to close in December 2026, subject to customary regulatory approvals.
